FACT SHEET: Development Permits

Myth: As a property owner, I have development rights and can develop my property how I see fit.

Fact: The right to develop any property is regulated by the Land Use Bylaw and requires landowners to obtain a valid development permit.

Myth: I don't need a permit until the house or structure is built.

Fact: Any earth moving or work on site qualifies as development. All developers will need to wait 14 days after you receive your written approval by the Development Authority before you are allowed to commence the work that has been proposed. If the permit is a Discretionary Use, it must be advertised and you will need to wait 14 days from the date the permit is advertised.

Myth: A development permit isn't required if a building is on skids or is a 'temporary dwelling'.

Fact: A development permit is required for any form of development be it temporary, permanent or on skids.

Myth: I live on a farm, so all buildings are exempt from development permits.

Fact: On parcels that are designated as Agriculture (A) Districts, only farm buildings completely dedicated to agricultural pursuits are exempt from Development Permits. However, all other uses such as residences, along with accessory buildings such as shops and garages require a permit.

Myth: Recreation properties or cabins don't require a development permit.

Fact: This only applies to recreational vehicles which are on wheels such as RVs or fifth wheel trailers. Changes proposed in the new Land Use Bylaw will restrict the number of recreational vehicles allowed on a lot. Campgrounds require a development permit and are not allowed in all Districts.

Myth: My building is small so it shouldn't require a development permit.

Fact: An accessory building 160 square feet or larger requires a permit. The only exception is farm buildings completely dedicated to agricultural pursuits on property classified as Agriculture (A).

Myth: Outbuildings, sheds, or garages don't need development permits.

Fact: These buildings require permits.

Myth: My house is old and I didn't acquire a permit. I shouldn't have to request a permit for any changes to my house.

Fact: Buildings that were built prior to the current Land Use Bylaw being adopted are typically grandfathered in but considered non-conforming. However, landowners are still required to obtain a new development permit to replace, make structural changes or place additions onto the existing home to conform to the current Land Use Bylaw.

Myth: I can bring my future manufactured/mobile home/cabins/sheds onto my property and store them while I apply for a development permit.

Fact: Structures cannot be stored on any property prior to obtaining a valid development permit.

Myth: I can replace my manufactured home or residence and tie-in to existing services without a development permit.

Fact: The manufactured home or residence is considered new development and you are required to obtain a current development permit.

ALBERTA MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS APPROVED ACCREDITED AGENCIES

After obtaining a development permit from Greenview, you may require other permits such as building, electrical, plumbing, gas and sewage permits from an agency such as those listed below.

Remember: A development permit from Greenview is not a building permit. Greenview does NOT issue building, electrical, plumbing, gas or sewage permits.

What type of work requires a permit?
The Safety Codes Act requires that all contractors and homeowners in Alberta obtain permits prior to commencing work on buildings covered by the Alberta Building Code or work governed by the Canadian Electrical Code, the Alberta Gas Code or the Alberta Plumbing Code.

Benefits of obtaining a permit:
Obtaining a permit confirms that installation will conform to the safety standards that have been adopted under the Safety Codes Act; and that inspection(s) will be provided by certified safety codes officers.

New Home Warranty Program

The Government of Alberta introduced new legislation, the New Home Buyer Protection Act, in 2012, which mandates the requirements for new home warranties. This new legislation will come into effect on February 1, 2014.

What is New Home Warranty?

New home warranty is an assurance from a builder that the new home is reliable and free from known defects and that the builder will, without charge, repair or replace any defects which arise within a given period of time and under certain conditions.

Under the proposed legislation, all new homes would at minimum, include a warranty for:

- one year labour and materials;
- two years for defects in labour and materials related to delivery and distribution systems;
- five years building envelope protection, with a requirement for the warranty provider to offer the consumer the option to purchase additional years of coverage; and,
- 10 years coverage for major structural components.

What types of homes would be subject to this legislation?

This proposed legislation is for single-family homes, condominiums, modular homes, mobile homes, and dwellings on recreational properties. It will not apply to dorms, work camps, hotels and rental apartments.

How does the new legislation effect you?

Mandatory warranty coverage applies only to new home construction and substantial renovations performed under building permits applied for after February 1, 2014. The New Home Buyer Protection Act will require homebuilders to provide proof of warranty coverage before building permits for new homes will be issued in Alberta.

Bulletin 2012-20

September 20, 2012

Directive 079: Surface Development in Proximity to Abandoned Wells in Support of the Subdivision and Development Regulation Amendment

The Energy Resources Conservation Board (ERCB) announces the release of Directive 079: Surface Development in Proximity to Abandoned Wells, which establishes new requirements targeted at proponents of surface developments, municipal officials, planners, development officers, and the oil and gas industry. The directive sets out requirements in support of an amendment by Alberta Municipal Affairs to the Subdivision and Development Regulation, which requires proponents (developers and property owners) of a subdivision or development to identify the locations of abandoned wells during planning and to appropriately locate them within proposed areas of surface development. The directive also establishes requirements for licensees of abandoned wells to provide information and support to proponents of a subdivision or development and to follow an established well locating and testing protocol for abandoned wells near existing and proposed surface development.

Key Features of the Directive

- Information about abandoned wells and how to identify their locations
- Instructions on obtaining abandoned well information from the ERCB using the newly developed Abandoned Well Viewer available on the ERCB website www.ercb.ca
- Requirements that proponents of a subdivision or development must follow, including setback requirements around abandoned wells
- Requirements that licensees of abandoned wells must follow, including using the well locating and testing protocol detailed in the directive
- Contactinformation

Additional Information

Directive 079 is available on the ERCB website www.ercb.ca. Printed copies of the directive may be purchased from ERCB Information Services, Suite 1000, 250 – 5 Street SW; telephone: 403-297- 8311 or 1-855-297-8311 (toll free); fax: 403-297-7040; e-mail: infoservices@ercb.ca.

The amendment to the Subdivision and Development Regulation is available on the Municipal Affairs websitewww.municipalaffairs.alberta.ca.

Questions or comments about this bulletin or Directive 079 may be submitted to directive079@ercb.ca.
